

Cherry Truck crashes on I-368

A truck carrying more than a million cherries crashed into a pole on smiling Turtle Road's exit off I-368. The truck was being driven by Bertram Hugapig, 50. Hugapig was awake and said he accidentally pushed the gas pedal when he should have pushed brake. Millions of cherries were splattered on the ground and sweepers were called on Friday at 7:30 AM to clean the ground. "I don't think we've ever had to clean this before," said chief Highway cleaner Norbert Smidge, 39.

I went skiing at Smiling Bear ski resort and had an odd trip. As I was driving there, it started to snow, so I had to get my snow chains. But, I had forgotten them back home, which meant an extremely slippery ride. Then, a bear plopped itself in the road and I had to drive through trees to get around it. I ended up smashing the right hand side mirror and needed to go to a store that fixed cars in the middle of no where. The guy who fixed my car was named P.J. and he was an emo goth. He kept on saying "Whatever," in a really gloomy voice. So, I gave him a piece of Bill's Good Beef Jerky to pep him up. I did not read the label and didn't see that it said Jalapeño stuffed. At least P.J. was really pepped by then. My cabin was nicely made and had a fake fireplace, because a real one would cut into their budget if the cabin burnt down. The problem was that if you put wet clothes next to the fake fireplace, it would make your clothes smell like I did when I went to the Catachicken tribe's camp and they roasted leeks over a burning tar pit. The next day I went skiing. I rented a helmet that made you smell like fleas and ski pants that were three sizes too small. I got onto the ski lift and I began to go up, when I reached the spot I wanted to ski from, I opened the bar to let you off and jumped down. All of a sudden, my pants got caught on the bar. I was stuck in the air with my ski poles flailing about. Then, my pants flipped over my head and I revealed to all that my name is Dr. Warren Fuzzy and that I have size 6 mens medium long underwear. I eventually got down after one of the workers stopped the machine and ripped off the pants. Then, when I was coming down, I got ran over by a snow duck which was flattening the snow. I finally got home and found that a bear had ripped off the trunk to my car and had eaten all the apples, prunes, and bananas. I was there for six more days and had things happen like squirrels upchucking into the hot tub and badgers mating inside the radiator. I left and got a duck stuck in the gas tank on I-47.

FOOD REVIEW

I went to the Cheese Hut on Saturday and had an interesting time. The service is extremely slow and when I asked for a glass of water, it showed up 45 minutes later. The noise is tolerable with the only loud noise when one of the waiters tripped and got a spoon in his pants. The food was amazing even though I was served in a little cup. The gorgonzola cheese was the only down point in the food department.

it appeared to have been left in the open for too long and it did not have any smell. The service got even worse when a waitress named Gertrude forgot that her apron was a little big and she tumbled into a waiter named Walter. He dropped a drink and his rear ended up in my face.

The dessert was very good, but the cheesecake was a little hard. My feelings towards the waiters and waitress' dropped even more after Edgar the waiter's head got stuck in a door and they forgot that I was leaving. My overall rating is 3 because of the great food, but the service was awful. This is a place if you want a family event, but a bad place for 1 or 2 person event.

Jellyfish still missing

The strange disappearance of J.J. Jellyfish has been a mystery to many animals including Otto Octopus. "I was with him three minutes before he swam away," Octopus said. Jellyfish disappeared last Thursday near Ocean Market around 12:30 PM. The top three suspects are Albert Alligator, Billy Seal, and Sean the Shark. Lagoon police have been following Alligator, Seal, and Shark closely to see if they are bothering others. If you know J.J. Jellyfish's location, please contact the Lagoon Police at (308) COP-LAG.
