

Possums Causes Large Traffic Jam

If you heard the honking, cursing, and vrooms on Highway 328, then you will not guess what caused it. The correct response is a furry possum. The little fellow was crossing the road so he could get to the woods on the other side, when he turned 'round to get something. When he tried to come back, he was almost hit by a speeding truck. His little friends heard the rucus and tried to save their friend. Nearly 930 possums were running about in their haste to find their home. Traffic was blocked for more than three hours as police tried to get all of the furry critters back to their home in the woods.

704 MORSTILL ROAD

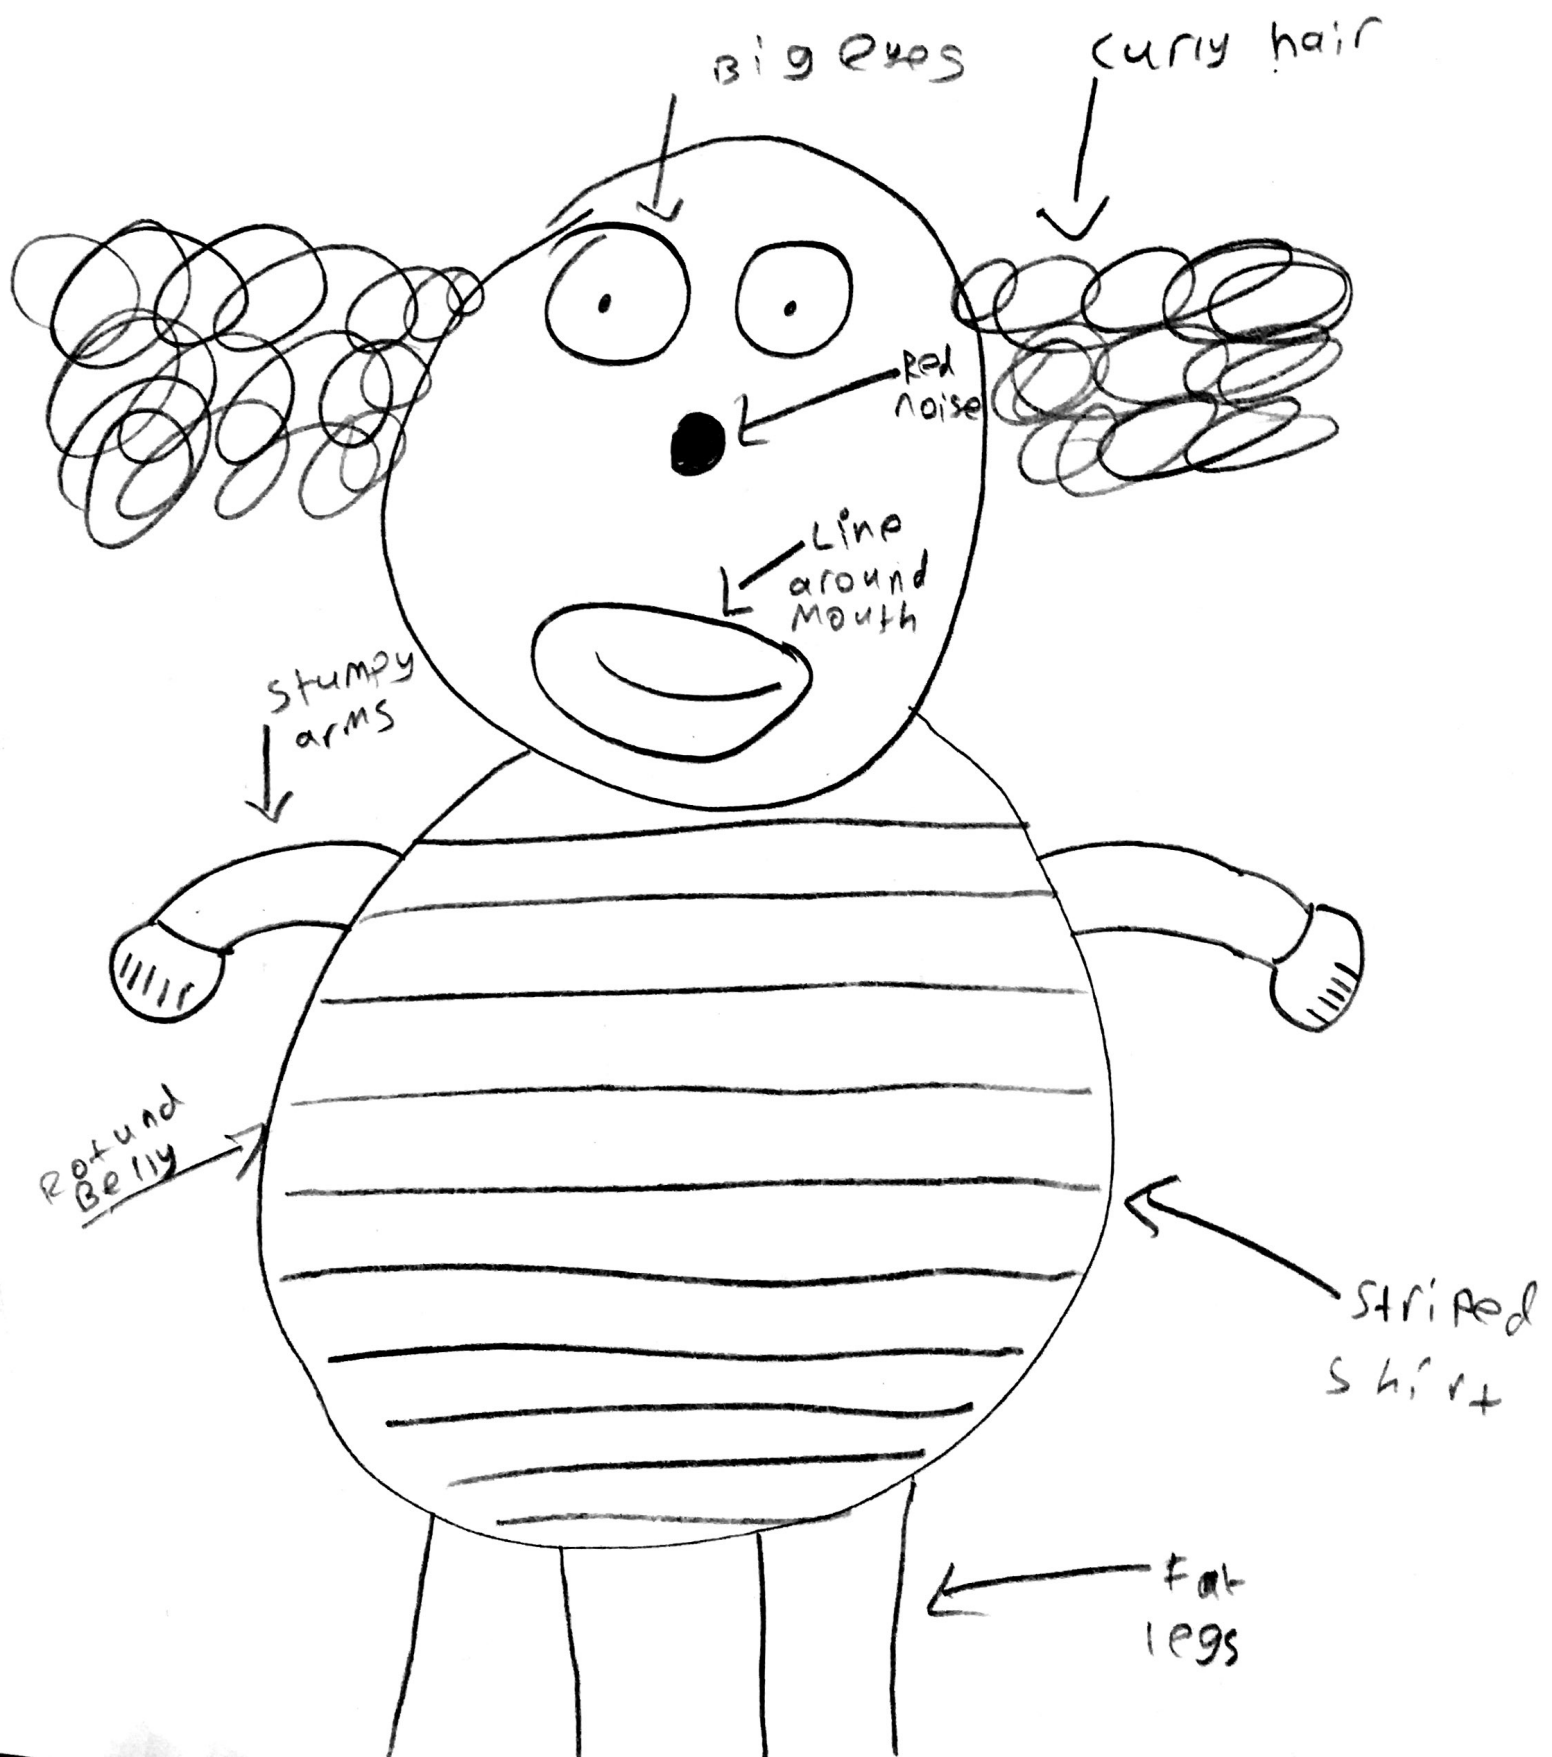

Read a magazine while you listen to older ladies gossiping!

I went to a Bumble Symphony orchestra concert and had an odd time. If you haven't noticed, all the pictures of composers from 1600 to 1700 are of grumpy guys wearing wigs. Also, the people wearing the wigs try to act like it's cool to wear a wig, but that kind of doesn't work since they are WAY before the word "Cool" was even invented. When I got inside, I found that my seat was all the way at the top of the opera house in the seats where old ladies use little opera glasses and look like they're bird-watching. When the show started, I enjoyed it quite a bit. After the "Ode to Joy" I stood up and cheered, but I clapped too much and fell over the side of the railing and fell into the chandelier overhanging all. You will not believe how many dead flies there are in there! All of a sudden, I fell out again and landed inside the tuba right as they were about to play "Star Wars." I was blown into the air and got stuck in the harp and it made an awful "TWATHING!" and all the strings on it snapped. Then, an organ pipe somehow dislodged itself and fell onto my head. After that, I tripped over a music stand and the organ pipe crushed the conductor's baton. "I am ruined!" he screamed. Lastly, I fell off the stage and an old man's dentures got caught in my hair. Then, these old people started chasing me and saying things like "Baah! Never come yander again!" I was just thinking "Huh?" Then six security guards came over and told me I had to leave area and give back the man's dentures. All in all, this was a very odd trip.

JELLYFISH STILL MISSING

D

J.J. Jellyfish is still missing after being seen by a sea urchin named George. "We are still looking for any possible locations of J.J. Jellyfish," said Lagoon Police Chief Danny Dolphin. Jellyfish has been missing for 29 days and could very well have been eaten. Albert Alligator is the prime suspect since he was seen following Jellyfish the day he went missing. Alligator says he was chasing the follower of Jellyfish but, Alligator has lied before. He told Police that someone took on board the Octopus when Alligator had kidnapped him. Please alert anyone if you see Jellyfish.
